

Polanyi Society Zoom Discussion
December 9, 2023 11:00 a.m. -12:30 p.m. Central Standard Time

This session will feature Martin Turkis and will focus on Turkis' essay "Blasting The Post-Critical Out Of The Continuum Of Cold War Political Economy: Repositioning Polanyi's Politics In The Twenty-First Century" which was included in the October 2023 issue of Tradition & Discovery: The Polanyi Society Journal. Immediately below is the Abstract for Turkis' essay as well as a link to the full article which is online.

ABSTRACT: This article aims to complicate the economic and political terrain on which debates within Polanyi Studies take place, arguing that imprecise terminology and an ossified set of Cold War concepts erect dubious and simplistic dichotomies (e.g., liberal/conservative, markets/planning, freedom/totalitarianism, etc.) that are not up to the task of appropriately navigating contemporary political economy. The essay accomplishes this task by offering counterexamples to status quo assumptions in Polanyi Studies as well as by suggesting more nuanced avenues for future Polanyian exploration.

We are presently experimenting to simplify the process of organizing Zoom Discussions. Immediately below is relevant Zoom information about this forthcoming Dec. 9, 2023 session. Any updates will be posted here on the Polanyi Society web page (<http://www.polanyi.society.org/>). Reminder notices about this session will be posted on the Polanyi Society Discussion List in early December. A recording of the session will be available on the Zoom cloud and the link for the recording will, soon after the session, be posted on the Polanyi Society Discussion List. A link for the recording on the Zoom cloud may later be available on the Polanyi Society web page under LINKS FOR RECORDINGS OF SOCIETY-SPONSORED ZOOM PRESENTATIONS AND DISCUSSIONS ON POLANYI-RELATED TOPICS.
