Immediately below is information about this session posted before the Zoom presentation/discussion on December 9, 2023. At the bottom of the page is the link for the recording of this session currently available on the Zoom cloud.

This session will feature Martin Turkis and will focus on Turkis' essay "Blasting The Post-Critical Out Of The Continuum Of Cold War Political Economy: Repositioning Polanyi's Politics In The Twenty-First Century" which was included in the October 2023 issue of Tradition & Discovery: The Polanyi Society Journal. Immediately below is the Abstract for Turkis' essay as well as a link to the full article which is online.

ABSTRACT: This article aims to complicate the economic and political terrain on which debates within Polanyi Studies take place, arguing that imprecise terminology and an ossified set of Cold War concepts erect dubious and simplistic dichotomies (e.g., liberal/conservative, markets/planning, freedom/totalitarianism, etc.) that are not up to the task of appropriately navigating contemporary political economy. The essay accomplishes this task by offering counterexamples to status quo assumptions in Polanyi Studies as well as by suggesting more nuanced avenues for future Polanyian exploration.
